DESCRIPTION

The west gable wall stands to a good height and exhibits a number of holes or sockets on the inside, but in no discernable pattern. The outlines of the other walls, and an extension or attached building to the east can be traced. The 'mill' name is a puzzle. Although it is close to the Donkleywood Burn, the building is well elevated above the burn level and there is no trace of a mill leat or a tailrace.
