DESCRIPTION

The Bower is a farmhouse with outbuildings, situated upon a grassy rise, between the Eals Cleugh to the N, and the Chirdon Burn to the S, and a little W of their confluence. There are no traces of a pele to be seen in or around the present buildings. The tower was pulled down in the late 18th century. [After Pastscape]

A. Murray (TAG) has reported seeing possible pele/bastle foundations under the floor of the present house. The present building is a five-bay house with central door, mostly 4-pane sashes, but some modern insertions to the left. Block-in –course masonry, gabled slate roof with two tall stacks; 2 or three-bay attached building to the right, slightly lower gabled roof. [from photos.]
