DESCRIPTION

Described by Grundy (1987) – “Early C19th, Coursed stone with dressings. two storey two bay cottage which is almost derelict. What is of interest, however is that the byre to one side, which is in even more perilous state, has roof timbers which, despite the late date of the building are extremely rough in construction, - an object lesson in how one has to be how careful one has to be in putting a date on such buildings.”
The house been restored and the two adjoining byres have been converted to living accommodation since 1993.
